NCAA Eligibility Center Launches New Website for High School Students

The NCAA Eligibility Center has launched a new website at NCAA.org/playcollegesports to help high school student-athletes successfully transition to college. The enhanced online content gives student-athletes and counselors a broad look at the initial-eligibility process and detailed information about common initial-eligibility situations. Student-athletes are guided through current and upcoming initial-eligibility requirements, recruiting guidelines, and timelines for staying on track in high school. Additional webpages address eligibility situations unique to international, home-school and non-traditional students. A wide range of frequently-asked questions addressing issues from academic and amateurism eligibility to high school and core-course review are easily searchable and will be expanded in the future. A new section for high school staff at NCAA.org/eligibilitycenter introduces the initial-eligibility process to counselors who are new to the NCAA and provides quick tips and important documents for seasoned counselors. High school staff and athletics personnel will find immediate access to initial-eligibility printouts, videos and tutorials at NCAA.org/student-athletes/future/educational-resources. Find the Eligibility Center on Twitter at @NCAA\_EC.

TSSAA Reschedules Girls' Basketball Tournament Due to Weather

All TSSAA state basketball tournament games scheduled for Thursday have been postponed due to extremely hazardous road conditions. Thursday's schedule will resume Friday at 11:00 a.m. in order to allow extra time to for road conditions to improve in the morning.

Friday's scheduled semifinal games will be played on Saturday beginning at 1:30 p.m. due to Middle Tennessee State University's women's basketball game that is scheduled game at 10:00 a.m. Saturday's scheduled championship games will be played on Sunday.

MTSU and TSSAA officials have been monitoring the weather situation and road conditions since 4:00 a.m. this morning. "There is no way that we are willing to put any student-athlete's life in jeopardy in order to try to play a basketball game," stated Bernard Childress, Executive Director of TSSAA. "To us, the safety of the student-athletes, coaches, fans, and anyone attending or participating in the state basketball tournament is first and foremost."
